
Kids are tough to impress nowadays. It's time for a better mousetrap.

There's a new sheriff in town.

Quasimoto may sound like an odd name for a video game company. It's really just to get your attention. Quasimoto is the new kid on the block for the Orthodontic community, but the word is quickly spreading that our products mean more business. Our US based company has grown rapidly since its 1998 inception, which is now selling gaming products through hundreds of retailers across the globe.

So what makes Quasimoto different?

Traditional video game systems, such as the Playstation® or Xbox® use small handheld controllers. These controllers are easy to break and simply don't cut it for public environments. On the flip side, video arcade machines are great for the public but are limited to only one game. Chris Gerding, inventor and CEO of Quasimoto Interactive, developed a product that makes you wonder, "why didn't I think of that." Imagine an arcade machine that is powered by a home video game system. With such a device, you could easily change the game being played simply by changing a disk. In this way, you have an arcade machine that plays limitless games and never becomes outdated. In a nutshell, Quasimoto's product merges next generation gaming consoles with the experience and feel of a real arcade machine.

Different is Better

Why is this important? Simply put, kids play video games at home, "been there, done that". Your practice needs differentiation and a positive, unique patient experience. Arcade games are an "out-of-home" experience, and playing them is an immersive adventure that kids love, and REMEMBER. Playing video games on a Quasimoto arcade machine gets kids talking, and you want them talking about your business to friends.

Why pay more for less?

Quasimoto attended the 2006 AAO meeting based on a recommendation from an orthodontist that had purchased a machine from one of our dealers. Our marketing department was absolutely floored by the outrageous prices being charged for game kiosks. To this end, we have been referred to as a "breath of fresh air". If you are seeking a better value for your hard earned dollar, look no further. Our products are more unique, longer-lasting, and more fun than anything else you are going to find at this year's AAO.

Size Matters

If space is an issue, we have an arcade solution to fit your space limitations. Be it large or small, we build to your specifications and help you pack the most BANG into your practice.

Customize to Revolutionize

Our creative department will work with you to design custom graphics for the sides and backlit marquee. We also offer furniture quality solutions to match your decor. Each machine is built to exceed your expectations.

Quasimoto manufactures custom built arcade machines that are powered by popular video game systems, like Playstation 3. With Quasimoto's innovative kiosks, kids can play their favorite games like they were at a real video arcade.

Quasimoto makes arcade cabinets that match your decor. Kids love the gameplay, you love that they are occupied and having fun.
